"I had a vision for my people - a man of perfect manhood, a being physically robust, an athlete, an outdoorsman, accustomed to brunt of flood, wind and sun - rough road and open spaces - a man wise in the ways of the woods, sagacious in council, dignified, courteous, respectful to all, a good-natured giant; a man whose life was clean, picturesque, heroic and unsordid; a man of courage. equipped for emergencies, possessing his soul at all times, and filled with a religion that consists, not of mere occasional observances, not of vague merits hoarded in the skies, but of a strong kind spirit that makes him desired and helpful here today." Ernest Thompson Seton - Co-founder of the Boy Scouts of America
